Chapter 1

Pickle and duck sat upon the school's jungle gym. They sat for many hours, not particularly talking about anything important. One topic comes up... "What does it mean to exist? Who even are we to aliens out there..." They both thought... the clouds drift by, a dog takes a leak on a pole.

Chapter 2

- duck spoke about when they were younger, they had an uncle who was a pro skateboarder, and this guy was world famous. Duck said he was a cool guy who taught him to skate. Pickle asked what his name was.. duck said: "#$%&'()*+,-./:; Pickle was confused.

chapter 3

- Duck always wore this fricken nasty hoody. Pickle didn't think it was ever washed once. It wasn't even a nice hoodie or anything, but duck loved that damn thing nonetheless...
- had a funky smell though...

Chapter 4

- "duck said they didn't want to be your friend anymore"
- no context, at the pool.

"but why? what did I do wrong?"

to this day we will never know...

the next day, that person left and duck was their friend again. still no reasons were provided...

Chapter 5

Pickle sat, and laid on the grass. it was soft. it was itchy. thats okay, he doesnt care enough to move, pickle feels small, feels tired, but is happy. pickle despite it all, still is loved.

Chapter 6

I thought of duck when I saw a travel ad for Thailand and remembered how the special crimes div of Canada called wondering where duck was, I did not know nor wanted to know. I wonder how they are doing.

chapter 7

- I Recalled the time when we went to a christmas lights thing, and it was not fun at all. and duck wore the goddamn hoodie as always. they say

"I Lied to you" "you so gullible"

- The last time Pickle saw duck was when they had finished flaunting their money all day, showing how they changed. they told stories to Pickle about overseas ambitions. They were so different. Is different bad? If different calls you up saying they are the authorities and your family is getting used by you... yeah it can be bad, but I hope they are okay...
