CHAPTER ONE

Brent is angry at his friend. Why is she playing with someone else, he thought she wanted to play with him. She is in the park where there is the grey fence, outside, and the hill up the tiny concrete is cracked. Brent <sup>puts</sup> his hands in a T-shape, furiously blocking himself from her, good friend Jenny. If there was any room, the tension in the air was high. "Go away Brent! You are blocking me!"

CHAPTER ONE

Brent is angry at his friend, why is she playing with someone else, is that right
one wanted to play with him, I'm in the part where there is the girl
there, outside, and she's talking to my favorite is started. I see she's like a T-shape
she's picking things from the room, the tension in the air was high
"Go ahead Brent, you can pick up the book, but she's looking at you

CHAPTER 2

Brent found out that there were some dimsum left out from the table. He went in to snatch one up but was hit by his grandpa's hand that stopped him. "Dirty fingers"
and he had to wash his hands.
But his little sister saw the whole scene, and she sneaked up and saved Brent a dim ~~stun~~ bun, still steaming, in her pocket. When she saw Brent she was looking

the two children ate it.

CHAPTER 3:

Brent

It was the first time <sup>Brent</sup> went to a party a birthday party at the largest kid's dreamworld! Crash Crawly's! <sup>Crash</sup> was sitting in the back with her friend Brent in the car, and drawing in my notepad. She had the sketch of a purse, and the mug appeared in the front of the Crash Crawly's door, a souvenir? Basketball was one of the things Brent liked playing, but they just jumped in the ball pit.

CHAPTER 4:

"I heard he is really protective of his sister" said my mom, "his grandma said to me. She is taking care of him and his mom is taking care of his sister in Taiwan. It must be hard work for the grandparents, but I really respect them. Such kind folks." Mom said while driving, staring for the next light. We were on our way home from school.

CHAPTER 5:

Brent sees a bunch of friends all playing together. He wants to see what is going on, but also wants to be "cool." So he looks at the ants on the ground, seeing if the friend would ask him to join. But the friend is not interested, and only sees him in a negative light. This ant doesn't seem to need anyone, being alone.

He stays with his stick, in the ground and runs to find some new friends.

CHAPTER 6

I encountered something that is a photo of my elementary graduating class, <sup>where I thought</sup> of Brent, that day when we were squished for a school photo, and Brent wanted to tell me something. He shifted in his seat and the click of the camera caused the pose to be forever framed on the school hallway, of his

he was teased by Shawn for scratching his butt.

CHAPTER 7:

Brent went on a trip to Whistler. He has been skiing the slopes since his highschool and elementary years, and are very comfortable in his skis, He can jump and do backflips, and his friends and him compete for the highest score. "Hey dude! Watch this!" He made a turn to do a tricky jump, but at the last minute he failed and crashed into a tree.

CHAPTER 8:

The last time I saw Brent, was when I was standing in line waiting for the teacher to open the door. He was standing across from me, with his hands in his pockets talking with his new friends. We didn't speak, and I just listened afar to their conversation. "That is the shit. I think you should do that Dude." I wonder what he was thinking, and I think he caught my eye, but we pretended like we don't
